The Check 21 Law that went into affect in 2004 CAN make life so much easier for your company. If you receive consumer checks, vendor checks, business checks, virtually any kind of check drawn on a US bank, you can now do from the convenience of your companys' location (or remote location) the same thing that only the top 5 or so banks are now doing for their customers. What is it? Accounts Receivable Conversion!

You can image your checks and send them directly to the Fed and into your bank account and NEVER leave the office. Now, with a document imaging terminal, a computer, and Internet access you can reduce hours of work and time in preparing deposits. No longer do you need to copy checks, enter them manually into your accounts receivable software, spend time looking up accounts, waste valuable time in filling out deposit slips. Once you have completed the image process, you can actually import all your information into your particular accounting software.

Companies i know have streamlined their Accounts Receivable Dept from a nightmare to a breeze. Major Result? Lots of savings in dollars, man hours, and wasted time trying to recoup NSF checks.

There is so much more to this business solution for companies. Yours should definitely consider it. Projections are that within 10 years, 80% of mid to large size companies will be doing their accounts receivable in house through ARC.
